INDEX.

Acton (Sir John, Bart.), A letter to, 88.
Analecta Juris Pontificii, noticed, 515.
Association of the Sacred Heart, reviewed, 101.
Averroes, his Psychology, 61.

Baker (Samuel White), The Albert Nyanza, reviewed, 116.
Besson (V. R. P. Hyacinthe), La Vie et ses Lettres, reviewed, 79.
Bigelow (John), Jamaica in 1850, 133.
———— Jamaica in 1850, reviewed, 362.
Brady (Rev. M., D.D.), Alleged Conversion of Irish Bishops, noticed, 549.
Brief, "Novissimum Supremi Nostri," reviewed, 414.
Buxton (Charles, M.P.), Article in the Edinburgh Review, 124.
Byrne (Mrs. W. P.), Cosas de Espana, noticed, 264.

Cæsar (Julius), by Napoleon III., reviewed, 1.
Carlyle (Thomas), on the Negro, 130.
Cartier (E.), Un Religieux Dominicain, reviewed, 79.
Catholic Education, Meeting at St. James's Hall, 114.
Champagny (Count de), his Roman history, 11.
Church Times, noticed, 542.
Church (The), and the World, noticed, 256.
Civilta Cattolica and Pius IX., 414.
Comte (M.), Philosophie Positive, 73.

Cromwell's Conquest and Settlement of Ireland, 433–454: Resumé of former article, 433; effects of the fall of Drogheda, 434; Venables marches into Ulster, 435; Trevor's camisade, 435, 436; Ulster lost, 436; Ormond's position and correspondence with the king, 437–439; military position after the fall of Drogheda, 439, 440; O'Neill's army, 440; his illness, 441; Cromwell's return to Dublin and plans, 441, 442; he determines to attempt Wexford, 443; his march through Wicklow, 444–446; the siege of Wexford, 446–450; the sack, 451, 452; results of the fall of Wexford, 451, 452.

Dalgairns (Rev. F.), The Holy Communion, noticed, 257.
D'Arcy (J., A.B.), A Letter to the Daily News, reviewed, 88.
Dechamps (V.), The Second Eve, or the Mother of Life, noticed, 236.
Döllinger (J. I., D.D.), The First Age of Christianity, noticed, 247.

Dr. Pusey on Marian Devotion, 142–199: General effect of the Eirenicon controversy on English prejudice, 142; Article proposes to deal with Dr. Pusey's objection that the Catholic worship of Mary tends to obscure the thought of God, 142; what are those Marian doctrines which the Church magisterially teaches? 145; positive evidence for the truth of these doctrines, 147; the notion is incidentally combated that, by the mere fact of believing that she can read the heart, Catholics account her divine, 148; Dr. Pusey's own objection precisely stated, 150; statement of an objection entirely analogous, which might be made by an Unitarian or Deist against the worship of our Lord, 152; the answer which both Dr. Pusey and ourselves would give to this objection, 154; an answer precisely similar vindicates the worship of Mary, 157; different classes of men to be considered, 157; the Marian devotion of that particular class which Dr. Pusey's argument concerns, 160; the case of interior and of saintly men, 172; two final comments, 172; further Marian doctrines very generally held among Catholics, 174; the thoughts and expressions of individual writers are divisible as regards authority into four classes, 177; title of co-redemptress, 179; other general propositions put forth by authorized writers, 180; twenty-two propositions carefully considered, which have been cited by Dr. Pusey from Catholic writers, and have been accounted the most startling of all his extracts, 190; conclusion, 199.

Dr. Pusey on Marian Doctrine: Excellence and seasonableness of F. Harper's volume, 455; the Immaculate Conception, 457; extraordinary significance of the prophecy in Gen. iii. 15, 459; Mary's immunity from the "debitum proximum contrahendi originale peccatum," 477; her Assumption, 489; the error of supposing her co-present in the Eucharist, 491; doctrines involved in the Church's devotion to her, 494; defence of these doctrines as regards the language of Scripture, 498; their defence as regards the silence of Scripture, 504; their defence as regards the language and the silence of antiquity, 510; conclusion. Peace through the Truth, 513.

Dufferin (Lord, K.P.), Contributions on the State of Ireland, noticed, 271.

Earle (J. C., B.A.), Manual of the Popes, noticed, 549.

Ecce Homo, noticed, 256.

Eirenicon (A) Catholic, noticed, 257.

Etudes Religieuses, noticed, 240.

Falloux (Comte de), Histoire de S. Pie V., reviewed, 273.

Fortnightly Review, noticed, 239.

Father Hyacinthe Besson, O.S.D., 79–87: Character of P. Besson, 79; his birth and family, 80; residence in Paris, 81; Art and Socialism, 82; Conversion and pilgrimage to Rome, 83; mission to the East, 84; return to Rome, 85; interview with the Pope, 86; returns to Mossul, 86; stricken by pestilence and dies, 87.

Gaume (The), Controversy on Classical Studies.—Essays and Miscellaneous Papers, 200, 228.

Gordon, Case of Mr., 380.
Grey (Earl), Substance of a Speech, noticed, 271.
Gueranger (Dom Prosper), Institutions Liturgiques, reviewed, 33.
Guerin (Eugenie de), Journal of, noticed, 268.
Guy (Rev. R. E.), Correspondence with Rev. Canon M'Neile, noticed, 259.
Gospel (The), in Turkey, reviewed, 305.

Harper (Rev. T., S.J.), Peace through the Truth, reviewed, 455.
——, Peace through the Truth, noticed, 523.
Home and Foreign (The), Review, on University Education, 94.

Interests of the Catholic Poor, 101–115 : The rise and development of "Social Science," 101 ; spread of luxury in the present age, 102 ; the modern Alcibiades, 103 ; true task of Social Science, 104 ; Social Science before the Reformation, and the effect of "the new learning" upon it, 104-106 ; the methods of the Church and of the State towards Poverty, 106 ; the Protestant Church and the monastic system, 107 ; advance of real Social Science in the present day, 108 ; danger of Proselytism, 109 ; the association of the Sacred Heart, 110–112 ; the Westminster Diocesan Fund, 112–114 ; meeting in aid of Catholic education of the poor at St. James's Hall, 114, 115.

Irish Writers on University Education, 88–101 ; Mr. Whittle's comments on the Dublin Review, 81 ; Dr. Sullivan's quotation of Bishop Clifford, 88 ; his mis-interpretation of the "Mirari vos" and "Quantâ curâ," 89, 90 ; Mr. Whittle's misrepresentation of the same Encyclicals, 90 ; the Dublin Review's opinion in regard to religious toleration, 90, 91 ; consonant with the teaching of the Church, 92 ; Mr. D'Arcy's letter regarding the Dublin Review, 93 ; the Dublin Review's not an Irish publication, 94 ; the article on University Education of the Home and Foreign Review, January, 1863, 94, 95 ; general character of Dr. Sullivan's pamphlet, 96 ; Dr McDevitt on Mr. Whittle's arguments and assertions, 96–99 ; imaginary conversation between Lord Russell and Irish Liberal Deputation in regard to University Education, 99–101.

Jamaica, 362–413 : The report of the Royal Commissioners, 362 ; statement of the Times respecting the revolt, 363 ; Dr. Underhill's letter, 366 ; comparison of statements of the Times with the Report of the Royal Commissioners, 369 ; Mr. Eyre's views as to the causes of the outbreak, 371 ; administration of justice in St. Ann's, 373, and in St. Thomas in the East, 376 ; Mr. Price's statements as to abuse of patronage, 379 ; Mr. Gordon's case, 380 ; his dismissal from the magistracy, 381 ; his rejection as Churchwarden, 382 ; wages in Jamaica, 385 ; the Royal Commissioners' opinion upon the necessity for proclaiming martial law and for its continuance, 389 ; on the punishments inflicted, 392 ; execution of Gordon, 393 ; expediency of trying Mr. Eyre, 397, and his subordinates, 399 ; English demonstrations in favour of Mr. Eyre, 402 ; nature of martial law, 403 ; necessity for legal proceedings, 406 ; public opinion in Jamaica, 408 ; proceedings in the colonial legislature, 409 ; Mr. Cardwell's despatch, 412 ; effect of English public opinion on the subject, 414.

Julius Cæsar, by Napoleon III., 1–32; Natural interest which we feel in a portrait of the first Cæsar by a modern Cæsar increased by the striking position of Napoleon III., 1, 2; general character of the work, 2; its Preface, 2–4; the theory of popular Messiahs, 4–6; merit of the sketch of early Roman history, 6–8; the chapter on the Mediterranean, 8; the morale of ancient and of modern civilization, 9; ancient society as affected by the Christian Revelation, 10; contrast of the present history with those of the Count de Champagny, 11; the Emperor's treatment of Cæsar's rivals, 12; sketch of the period between the Syllan proscriptions and the battle of Actium, 13–15; Luxury, 15; State of agriculture, 15, 16; Usury, 16; Roman slavery, 17; the plebs rustica and plebs urbana, 18; Cæsar's policy in regard to the public lands, 19; Cæsar's devotion to "glory," 20; views of Mommsen and Merivale, 21; review of the period preceding Cæsar's consulate, 21–24; relation of the Triumvirs, 24, 25; the conquest of Western Europe, 25–27; Cæsar's relation to the true Messiah, 27; character of Pompey, 28; effect of Cæsar's conquests at Rome, 29; meeting of Cæsar, Crassus, and Pompey, 30, 31; Pompey's peculiar position, 32; conclusion as to the general character of the history, 32.

Knox (Rev. T. F.), Life of B. Henry Suso, noticed, 547.

Langlois, Peinture sur Verre, 62.

Lecky's History of Rationalism, 51–79: New aspect of the study of history, 51; the influence of a more philosophical school of history extends to theology, 52; Mr. Lecky applies to religious the more advanced method of secular history, 53; his view of miracles, 53–55; his view of the evidence in regard to Magic and Sorcery, 55; his view of the Mediæval devotion to our Blessed Lady, 55–57; the "Omnipresence" of the Saints, 57; demoniacal possession and the "material fire" of Hell, 58–60; the materiality of the human soul, 60; S. Thomas and Suarez on this question, 61; religious art in the Middle Ages, 62; Anthropomorphism, 63; the Protestant idea of the Beatific vision, 64; state of theological science before the scholastic period, 65; character of S. Thomas Aquinas, 66; mis-quotations of his writings by Mr. Lecky, 67–69; idea of punishment in the Middle Ages, 70, 71; Mr. Lecky's representation of the doctrine of eternal punishment, 72, 73; M. Comte on Purgatory, 73; the teaching of the Church in regard to Sacraments, 74; contrasted teaching of the heretical sects, 75; the Catholic doctrine on the Incarnation, 76; its development leading to an equal development of the doctrine of Divine Love, 76, 77; dangerous character of Mr. Lecky's book, 78; general character of Rationalism, 78, 79.

Lockhart (W., B.A.), on the Eirenicon, noticed, 528.

Lyra Liturgica (Canon Oakeley's), reviewed, 33.

McDevitt (John, D.D.), University Education and Ultramontanism, reviewed, 88.

Malta, invasion of by the Turks, 294.

Manning (Archbishop), on Revelation, 421.

Maronites, fidelity of to the Church, 313.
M'Corry, (J. S., D.D.), Mosaic Covenant, noticed, 548.
Merivale (Rev. C.), on Roman History, 21.
Mill (J. S.), Dissertations, 71.
Molloy (Rev. G.), Dr. Pusey's Eirenicon, a Review, noticed, 246.
Mommsen (Dr.), on Roman History, 21.
Montfort (Père D.), on Devotion to our Lady, 166.
Murray (Rev. Patrick, D.D.), De Ecclesia, noticed, 519.

Napoleon III. (the Emperor), Histoire de Jules César, reviewed, 1.
Negro (the) in Africa and the West Indies, 116–142: Mr. Baker's discoveries compared with those of Speke and Grant, 116; Mrs. Baker's share in the expedition, 117; general character of its difficulties, 117–120; Mr. Baker's estimate of the African, 120–122; its agreement with the prejudices of the educated classes in our days, 122, 123; the examples of Jamaica and Hayti, 124; real state of the West India Islands under slavery, 125; report of the Governors on the conduct of negroes, and state of the islands since Negro Emancipation, 125–129; views of Mr. Baker and of Mr. Carlyle, 129–131; abolition of slavery a gain to the Colonies, 132–135; conditions of agriculture in the West Indies, 138; erroneousness of Mr. Baker's views, but great value of his explorations, 139–142.
Newman (Very Rev. J. H.), Letter to Dr. Pusey, 165.
—— The Pope and the Turk, reviewed, 273.
—— A Letter to Rev. E. B. Pusey, reviewed, 455.

Oakeley's (Canon) Lyra Liturgica, 33–50: Characteristic division of the Catholic Liturgy into times and seasons, 33, 34; rationale of the cycle of Church festivals, 34; one common plan of the ancient liturgies, 35; double function, didactic and devotional, of the Liturgy, 36; special object of Canon Oakeley's book, 36; illustration of the ecclesiastical seasons, 37; views of previous writers, 36, 37; general division of the Lyra Liturgica, 38; the Advent Poems, 39; the poems relating to our Lady, 40–43; Christmas Day, 43, 44; the Epiphany, 45; Palm Sunday, 46; Passion tide, 47, 48; the Christian Priesthood, 49; General character of Canon Oakeley's poetical genius, 50.
Oakeley (Very Rev. Frederick, M.A.), The leading topics of Dr. Pusey's recent work, reviewed, 40.
Origen at Cæsarea, 332–361: The position of Origen in Cæsarea, 332; his homilies, 334; his flight from Cæsarea, 337; the persecutions of Maximin, 338; his second journey into Greece and impressions of the Athenian Church, 339; his letter to the Emperor Philip, 339; his letter contra Celsum, 341; the character of the work and of that of Celsus, 346–359; his persecutions and death, 361.
Origenis Libri Contra Celsum, reviewed, 332.
Oxenham (H. N.), Dr. Pusey's Eirenicon Considered, etc., noticed, 240.

Papal Brief in favour of "La Civiltà Cattolica," 229.

Papers relating to Disturbances in Jamaica, reviewed, 362.
Pascal (Abbé J. B.) Origines et Raisons de la Liturgie Catholique, reviewed, 33.
Patterson (J. Laird, M.A.), Journal, reviewed, 305.
Pius V. (S.) The Father of Christendom, 273–304: The childhood and early education of Pius, 274; he is appointed professor of Theology 275, and Inquisitor, 276; M. de Falloux' comments on the office of Inquisitor, 277; journey to Rome, 279; created Bishop and Cardinal, 281; his charity, 282; he opposes children being created Cardinals, 284; is appointed Pope, and takes the name of Pius, 286; the condition of Christendom at the period, 288; Reforms introduced by Pius, 289; his treatment of the Jews, 290; his civil administration, 291; sanctions decrees of Council of Trent and revises the Missal and Breviary, 293; invasion of Malta by the Turks, 294; Pius disapproves the marriage of Margaret of Valois and Henry of Navarre, 296; his correspondence with Mary, Queen of Scots, 297; Dr. Newman on the decline of the Turkish power and the victory of Lepanto, 299; Pope's last illness and death, 302.
Pius IX. and the "Civilta Cattolica," 414–432: Appeal of Pius IX. in 1849 to literary men to defend the Church and its answer, 414; establishment of literary college for Jesuit writers of the Civiltà Cattolica, 415; relation of the Jesuits to the Church, 416; the Catholic journals of Italy, 417; rarity of any public manifestation of the Papal approbation of literary labours, 418; necessity for great faith in the teaching of the Roman Church, 418, 419; testimony of the Fathers on this point, 420; Archbishop Manning on revelation, 421; the Christian as disciple and as critic, 422; faith objective not subjective, 423; instinctive hatred of heresy to the Pope, 424; Civil Governments and the Church, 424, 425; peculiar character and outline of the acts of the present Pontificate, 426–430; tradition the common law of faith, 431; character and services of the Jesuit order, 432.
Prendergast (J. P.), The Cromwellian Settlement of Ireland, reviewed, 433.
Price (George), Jamaica and the Colonial Office, reviewed, 362.
Prospectus of Syrian Protestant College, reviewed, 305.
Protestant Proselytism in Eastern Lands, 305–331: Invariable failure of Protestant missions, 305; comparison of Protestant with Catholic missionaries, 306; Turkish Missions Aid Society, 308; Mr. Urquhart on, 309, 311, 312; Maronites, fidelity of, to the Church, 313; effect of Protestant missions in shaking religious belief, 316; protection afforded by American and English consuls to native Protestants, 321; English consuls and the Syrian Protestant College, 323; Details of plan of promoters of proposed College, 326; views of the Maronites with regard to French protection, and the interference of English missionaries, 330.
Pusey (Rev. E. B., D.D.), An Eirenicon, reviewed, 142.
——— An Eirenicon, reviewed, 455.
——— Speech at Church Union Meeting, noticed, 533.

Raby (Richard) B. Henry Suso's Little Book, noticed, 547.
Raccolta (The), 145.

Ramière (H., S.J.), Article in Le Monde, noticed, 533.
Rawes (Rev. H. A.), Homeward, noticed, 260.
Report of the Jamaica Royal Commission, reviewed, 362.
Rhodes (Mr.), Letters, 182.

Salazar cited by Dr. Pusey, 192.
Sculthes (Wilhelm) Mass, noticed, 270.
——— Melodies for Hymns, noticed, 270.
Shirley (Rev. Walter), Royal and other Historical Letters, noticed, 262.
Sidden (Rev. J.), Cardinal Wiseman and Bishop Challoner, noticed, 237.
Staudenmaier (Dr. F. X.), Der Geist des Christenthums, 38.
Sullivan (William K., Ph. D.), University Education in Ireland, reviewed, 88.
Sweeney (Rev. J. N.), Lectures, noticed, 268, 527.

Thomas (S.), Contra Gentiles, 61.
Turkish Missions Aid Society, 308.

Ullathorne (Right Rev. Bishop), The Anglican Theory of Unity, noticed, 234.
Union Review, noticed, 538.
Urquhart (David), The Lebanon, reviewed, 305.

Vincenzi (Aloysius) MS. Gregorii et Origenis scripta, noticed, 251.

Westminster Diocesan Fund, reviewed, 101.
Whittle (James Lowry, A.B.), Freedom of Education: What it means, reviewed, 88.
Wiseman (Cardinal), Letter to Rev. J. H. Newman, 164.